A little bit of History

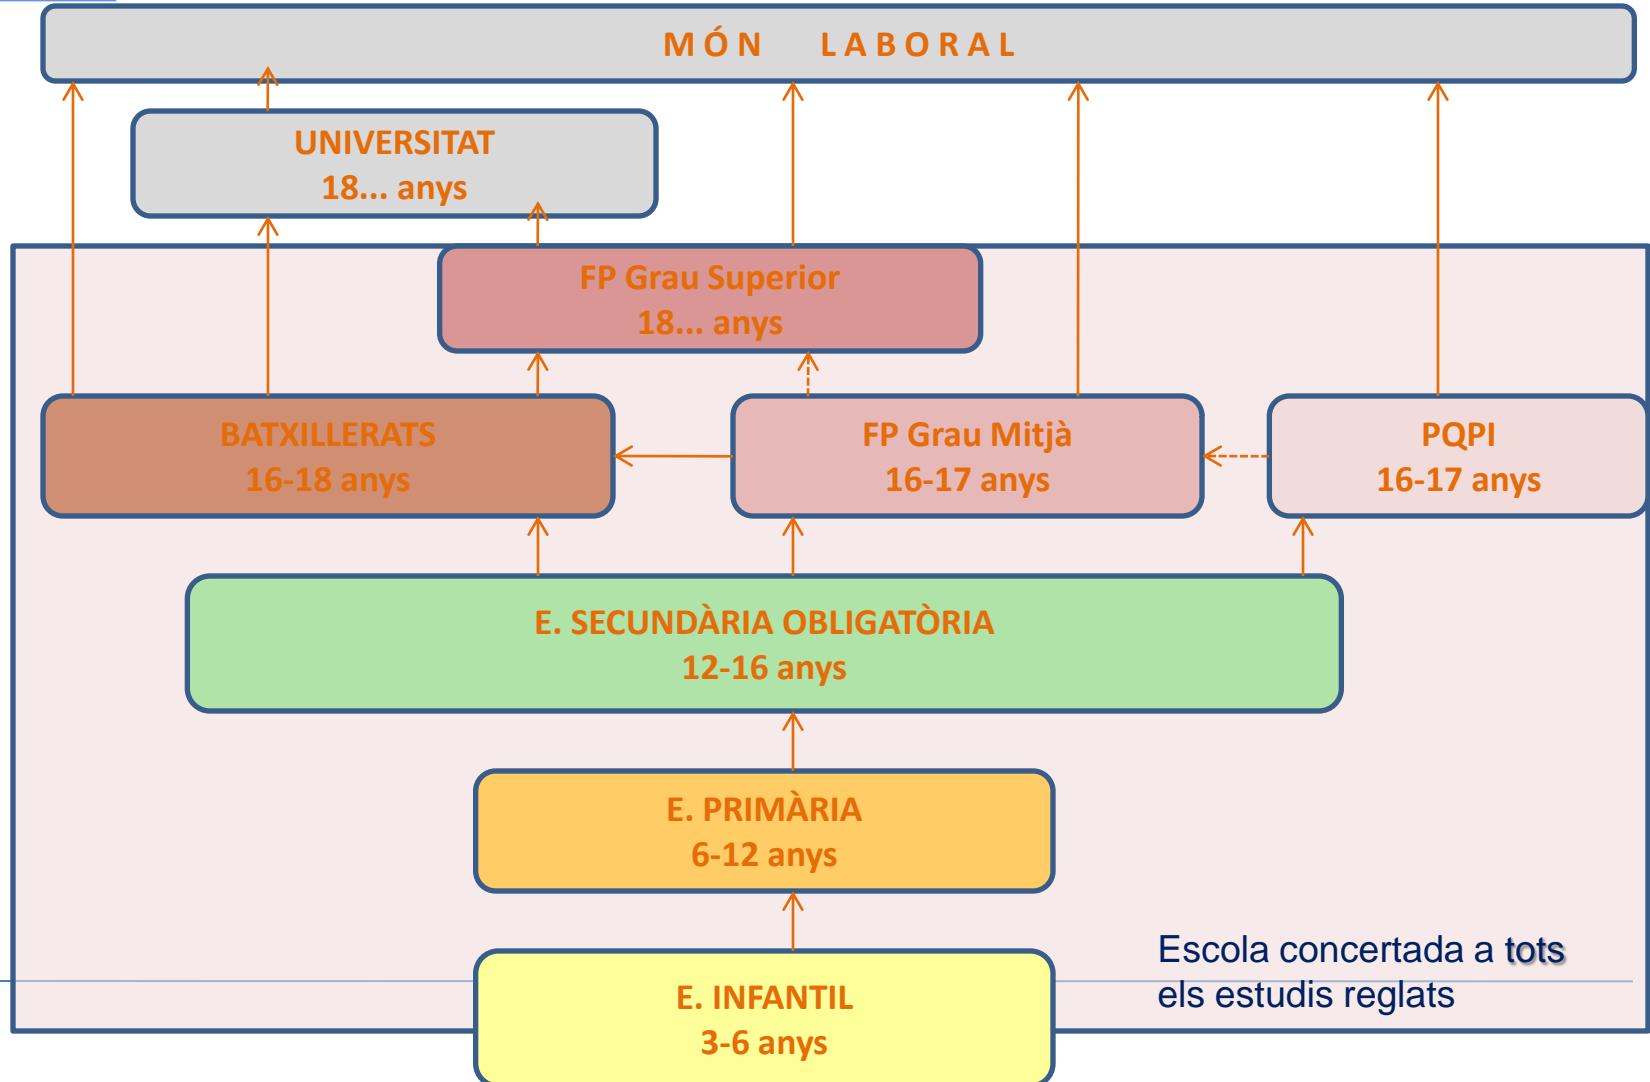

Bellvitge is a district of Hospitalet, the second town in Catalonia in population (250.000 unhabitants).

A district with more than 26.000 unhabitants, which was created and developed with immigrant waves during the years 1965-70 mainly from south Spain. Now, the few immigrants who come are mainly from Central and South America.

The Studies Centre Joan XXIII was set up in 1968 by the Jesuit Josep Ituarte. The school building is from 1974, and occupies more than 10.000m².
